DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS – DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer refund request on unaltered returned items.

Advertising must be prepaid, except as noted below; see "Payment" paragraph above for details. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals must be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon, black printing on white. No reverse type if A.R.C. is to make up the ad. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85-line screen; otherwise, add $10.00 per photo for screening. Do not cut or trim photos or glue photos to artwork; submit separately.

If you are confused by these requirements and terms, please contact A.R.C. before beginning to prepare your ad. We will be happy to advise you on your ad ideas, estimate how much the ad will cost, recommend an ad size, etc.

We assume that advertisers want all ads which are submitted to run without delay; therefore, we will run the ad and bill for any additional work required for the ad to meet these specifications. A late ad will run beginning with the next month. "Tear sheets" will be sent only for ½ and full page ads, and only if requested when the ad is submitted.

Business card ads are limited to one per advertiser.

The 3-month rates represent about an 11% discount, the 6-month rates, 23%, the 12-month rates, 30%. Placement requests for display ads: add 15% but call first. Clubs: write for discount policy.

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

To kick off a great New Year, A.R.C. presents Dan Howard's detailed discussion of Arvin metal cabinet radios in our lead article. This thoroughly researched piece traces the history of metal models year by year and describes their various styles and colors. Illustrated with 21 photos, Dan's article provides invaluable information for those who have or hope to acquire Arvin metal radios.

Dan also joins in the controversy over whether Arvin ever produced a chrome-plated model; he finds no evidence of such a model in the extensive research he has done. Is there anyone out there who can document by ads or otherwise, a chrome-plated model?

The Kodel "microphone" — or is it a speaker? — is the subject of an article by Dave Crocker, a member of A.R.C.'s staff. Dave describes what is inside this large microphone-looking speaker, which was touted as "the sensation of the season" in 1925.

Ian Sanders, our regular contributor on sets from across the Atlantic, describes Cosmos Radiophone crystal sets — Types C.1 and C.4 — in the careful detail we've come to enjoy in Ian's articles.

George Potter reports on the Vintage Radio and Phonograph Society (VRPS) Convention and Auctions in Irving, Texas, on October 16-18, 1992. An astonishing total of 900 items was put up in three auctions, with a yield of nearly $40,000. The format of the very successful VRPS meets differs from that of most clubs in that their auction — their "main event" — precedes the flea market, which is a morning-only affair on the third day of the meet. An impressive old equipment contest parallels the auction activity.

This month, Frank Bock contributes our repair article in which he describes the repair of the potted "catacomb" units found in RCA Models AR810, AR812, and Radiolas 24, 25, 26 and 28. Frank's method employs a heat gun to melt the potting compound.

Our Photo Review shows several tombstone and cathedral sets, as well as a collection of unusual European crystal detector boxes. Look also for a nice photo of the unique Crosley Buddy Boy.

Several short letters, notes, and articles containing valuable comments and information appear throughout the issue. Robert Lozier's clever technique for "de-dusting" your sets is on my own "must-do" list. Lloyd Spivey's Ten Commandments for the Radio Serviceman offers us all some amusing food for thought.

Advertising Policy Changes. In each issue, we print the A.R.C. Advertising Policy on the inside front and rear covers, and on the first page of the classified ads. As mentioned in our June and December 1992 Editor's Comments, we expect that if a buyer is dissatisfied, the seller will accept the return of unaltered items and send a refund. Since this is the accepted business practice today, this requirement has been added to our advertising policy.

Our conversations with sellers and our own experience indicate that the request for a refund is rare and usually the result of a misunderstanding. Advertisers, please consider this new stipulation before you place your next ad.

Subscription and Advertising Rate Increases. Beginning in the July 1992 issue, A.R.C. announced that the New Year would usher in an increase in A.R.C. rates. Please look over the center coupon, and the inside front and rear covers for the new subscription, display and classified advertising rates. Note especially that the extra word charge for classified ads is increased by 2¢ to 17¢ per word for those words over the monthly free 20 words.

We increase rates reluctantly and only when necessary to maintain A.R.C. as a quality publication. In this regard, we print a number of letters and comments from our readers in Radio Miscellanea this month. These include several of the infrequent unfavorable ones. Also included is a chart showing A.R.C.'s growth in pages, classified ads, article pages and subscription rates. By almost any measure, the A.R.C. you receive today is a bargain.

Club Events. The club activity scene is picking up again with 28 January events listed on our Coming Radio Events pages. A.R.C. plans to be at the quarterly New England Antique Radio Club meet in Nashua, New Hampshire, on January 23, 1993, and at the Greater Boston Antique Radio Collectors Radio XXIV in Westford, Massachusetts, on February 21, 1993. After this February show, A.R.C. is hosting an open house, along with a chance to see the editor's personal collection. Please note the details on page 71 in this issue.

Our sincere thanks to the many friends who have sent holiday greetings to our staff. And to all of you, both newcomers and those who have supported A.R.C. through the years, we extend our best wishes for a Happy New Year — which, of course, includes Happy Collecting in 1993!

ON THE COVER

One of Arvin's first metal cabinet radios, the 1938-1939 Model 40, appears on our cover this month. Dan Howard states in this issue's lead article on Arvin metal cabinet radios that "this set is among the hardest of Arvins to find." This model also was sold sporting the name "Mighty Mite" instead of "Arvin" on its face.

WITH THE COLLECTORS

Arvin Metal Cabinet Radios

BY DAN HOWARD

Arvin metal cabinet radios first became widely accepted as collectibles in the late 1980s after being pictured in chrome by Philip Collins in Radios: The Golden Age.

Since then many people have found Arvins fun to collect because they are available in a number of eye-catching colors and styles and are small enough to display on a bookshelf. And while prices have been going up, most Arvin models are still relatively inexpensive.

Unfortunately, when it comes to Arvin metal radios, many of the standard collector's references have missing or inaccurate information. [Steve Baron who reviewed Collins' book Radios: The Golden Age (A.R.C. April 1988, p. 10) questioned the authenticity of the chrome-plated radios pictured in the Collins book.] To help collectors better appreciate what they have or may want to acquire, this article offers a model-by-model presentation of Arvin metal radios.

PART I: PREWAR METAL ARVINS

All metal Arvins produced before World War II were offered in standard paint colors — either walnut (brown with black flecks) for the 1938-1939 models or plain brown for the 1940-1941 models. For about $2 more, Arvins were available with ivory paint, and the letter "A" was added to the model number (i.e. 402A). According to my research, no other colors were available prior to World War II.

Like many manufacturers, Arvin printed its model numbers on paper labels which were glued to the radio cabinets. Look for the label on a 1938-1939 radio inside the top of its cabinet. With 1940-1941 and later models, look for a label on the bottom of the cabinet. Because of their usefulness in model identification, I have shown chassis numbers in parentheses after the model numbers.

1938-1939. Arvin's 2-tube Model 40 (RE-49), "The Arvinet," was one of the company's first metal cabinet radios. As shown in Figure 1, its keyhole-shaped dial plate, bar-shaped pointer knob, and ridge which runs front-to-back above the dial make this set easy to identify. Model 40 was released with one of two different names on its dial foil — either "Arvin" or "Mighty Mite."

On page 126 of his book Arvin: The First Sixty Years, Coke Coons reports that "Hundreds of thousands of these little sets were sold to jobbers for as little as $4.10 each, and for years the company received inquiries from owners needing parts." In spite of its high sales volume, this set is among the hardest of Arvins to find.

Model 402 (RE-55), shown in Figure 2, is the Model 40's 3-tube big brother. The straight bars on Model 402's dial foil make it easily distinguishable from the later look-alike Model 422, also shown in Figure 2.

Model 502 (RE-48) offers the improved performance of a 5-tube circuit in a traditional window-dial, right-hand-drive cabinet. Early production cabinets have a flat "hump" on the top, while later sets, like the Model 502A shown in Figure 3, feature a rounded hump.

Figure 4 shows Arvin's all-metal radio-phonograph, Model 302A (RE-64). This set combines a single-speed (78 rpm) turntable with a specially designed 4-tube radio chassis. You may recognize the dial foil and knobs from the Model 402. I believe the Model 302's chrome grille makes it the only Arvin that originally came with some chrome.

1940-1941. In 1940, Arvin introduced a new "Arvinet," Model 422 (RE-91). It featured a new 4-tube chassis in the old 3-tube Model 402 cabinet. As shown in Figure 2, the curved lines on the Model 422's dial plate makes it easily distinguishable from the Model 402.

Model 522 (RE-76) and its cousin, Model 524 (RE-99), are often confused with each other. Both radios use 5-tube circuits and the same window-dial cabinet. As Figure 5 shows, the difference lies in the dial faces: Model 522A uses a lithographed dial face with "Arvin" above the pointer, while Model 524A has a foil dial face with "Arvin" below the pointer. Incidentally, Model 522 is one of the few metal Arvins with a lighted dial. The one shown in Figure 5 was repainted mauve by its owner.

Wood's Evolution of the Radio includes an Arvin ad on page 79. Although the set in the lower left-hand corner is advertised as a Model 524, the dial face shown is from Model 522. Note also that the page is most likely from a 1941 rather than from a 1949 catalog as indicated.

In general, most prewar models are less colorful but harder to find than the postwar sets.

PART II: POSTWAR METAL ARVINS

After reverting to civilian production following World War II, Arvin presented its first new metal cabinet radios in 1946. In contrast to the prewar production, color variety soon became a major focus. All postwar chassis utilized 4-tube circuits. Look for a production date (i.e., AU 47 = August, 1947) rubber-stamped in red on the label of postwar sets.

dio, the Model 444 (RE-200), is among the easiest to find. Like the 1940-1941 models, Model 444 was originally offered only in brown and ivory. In 1948, Arvin reintroduced Model 444 in six new colors: banana yellow, gardenia cream (light green), geranium red, leaf green, persimmon, and turquoise.

As shown in Figure 6, Model 444AH (RE-200) features a black plastic handle and matching black knobs. I have seen this set in ivory and turquoise, so I assume that it was available in other colors as well.

Models 444M and 444AM (RE-200M), versions of the Model 444 with miniature tubes, were released in 1947. Model 444M is brown and 444AM, ivory. After these models, Arvin didn't use miniature tubes in its metal radios again until the 1950s.

1947. Although it was first produced in 1947, Model 442 (RE-91), shown in Figure 7, has more in common with Arvin's prewar radios. Except for its black paint and silver dial face, Model 442 is identical to Model 402, as shown in Figure 2. Further, Model 442 uses the prewar RE-91 chassis from Model 422. Lest you have any doubts, my set is marked January 1948. This model seems moderately hard to find.

1948. Models 242T and 243T (RE-251) are among Arvin's most colorful radios. The Model 243T, shown in Figure 8, has a boxy cabinet with oversized knobs in contrasting colors. Color combinations include green with banana-yellow knobs, gunmetal gray with light gray, ivory with light tan, red with pale yellow, and yellow with light blue knobs. Arvin called the ivory cabinet Model 242T, and the other colors were designated Model 243T. In all other respects, they are alike. While Model 242T is plentiful, Model 243T is harder to find.

Arvin used two different types of plastic to make the tuning and off/on knobs, so you may find that your knob colors no longer match due to the way the plastics have aged.

1949. Arvin's Model 341T (RE-274), pictured in Figure 9, is the last of the small-format sets. From its appearance, I believe that it was the product of tooling left over from earlier production. Model 341T's cabinet is similar in style to the Models 402/422/442 cabinets, as shown in Figures 2 and 7. Its oversized tuning knob is from Model 242T and its skirted off/on knob is from Model 444, shown in Figure 6. Model 341T was available only in sandalwood (light tan) with maroon knobs and seems hard to find.

1950. 1950 marked the change to large-format (brick-shaped) cabinets. A globe-style speaker grille makes Model 440T (RE-278), shown in Figure 10, easy to recognize. Versions of its RE-278 chassis are used in all of the later sets in the series. Model 440T was produced in a variety of colors, including banana yellow, burgundy, foxhunt red, ivory, sand bronze, and willow green.

Model 441T (RE-278), not pictured, is better known as the Hopalong Cassidy radio. Certainly the most flamboyant radio in the series, it is nonetheless based on the traditional metal cabinet and 4-tube RE-278 chassis. For more information on this radio see A.R.C., July 1989.

1951. Model 540T (RE-278), shown in Figure 11, was available in avocado, cherry, citron, flame, ivory, and pebble. Although this is the most common large-format Arvin, many of the "better" colors seem quite elusive.

1953. Arvin created a "new" model for spring 1953 when it reissued its 1950 Model 440T, shown in Figure 10, in ivory with Hopalong Cassidy-style black and chrome knobs. Arvin designated this "new" radio Model 542T (RE-278), not shown.

Later in 1953, Arvin began advertising the now hard-to-find Model 740T (RE-278/RE278-1). Featuring a large free-form speaker opening, shown in Figure 12, this model was first offered with the RE-278 chassis and later with the RE-278-1. Model 740T was available in cherry, citron, coral, green, ivory, and tan.

1954. The front of Model 840T (RE-278-1), pictured in Figure 13, is dominated by its large plastic nameplate/dial pointer. The frequency is read at the left side of the tuning knob where it touches the pointer rather than at the top as on most radios. No chassis modifications were required. Arvin simply shifted the dial scale on the knob counterclockwise 90 degrees! Model 840T came in a variety of colors including bitter green, cherry, citron, coral, ivory, and sandalwood.

Arvin created another "new" model for 1954 when it reissued 1951's Model 540T, shown in Figure 11, in ivory and dubbed it Model 842T (RE-278-1). Apart from the RE-278-1 chassis and the new name, it was unchanged from the 1951 model.

Both Model 840T and Model 842T were later made available with the miniature-tube RE-278-2 chassis. These were probably the latest production models and were not given new model numbers.

PART III: THE PRIVATE LABEL ARVINS

Many collectors are familiar with the "Silvertone" brand radios that Arvin produced for Sears, Roebuck and Co. Since all Silvertones were made by outside manufacturers, Sears used the first three digits of the chassis number to indicate the source. Arvin's source number was 132. Look for the chassis number on the back of the chassis and the catalog number on the bottom label.

1942 Silvertone Catalog No. 7020 and 7022 (132.814). In spring 1942, Sears cataloged two metal-cabinet versions of its popular Commentator radio. Model 7020 has walnut paint (brown with black flecks) with gold trim and knobs, as shown in Figure 14. Model 7022 (not shown) has ivory paint and is trimmed in red. [Watch for these models in a future A.R.C. article listing more left-handed radios.]

1946 Silvertone Catalog No. 6002 (132.818). Similar in size and design to Arvin Model 444, Model 6002, "The Silvertone Midget," was available only in ivory. Model 6002, shown in Figure 15, can be distinguished from later models because "Silvertone" was embossed on the front of the cabinet rather than on the dial scale. Model 6002 came with a vented metal back with "ears" on the corners for coiling up the wire antenna.

1948 Silvertone Catalog No. 8003 (132.818-1). In 1948, Sears began cataloging Model 8003 which was simply a restyled Model 6002 with gray-green (light blue) paint as shown in Figure 16. Changes included moving the word "Silvertone" from the cabinet onto the dial — presumably streamlining the production process — and eliminating the vented metal back.

1949 Silvertone Catalog No. 8004 (132.818-1). In 1949, Model 8004 (ivory), also shown in Figure 16, was added to the catalog. As was typical for most models, the ivory Model 8004 retailed for $2 more than the identical Model 8003 in gray-green.

1950 Silvertone Catalog No. 1 & 2 (132.878). Model 1 (brown with ivory knobs) and Model 2 (ivory with brown knobs), pictured in Figure 17, are the most commonly found private label Arvins. The tuning knob of these models is attached to the chassis before installation. It is adjusted through a hole in the front of the cabinet and cannot be removed from the front. More often than not, I find these sets with the volume control knob (which can be pulled from the front) missing — perhaps the revenge of frustrated kids?

1953 Silvertone Catalog No. 2001 and 2002 (132.878). In 1953, Sears stopped cataloging Models 1 and 2 and offered two new models. As shown in Figure 18, the new radios, Model 2001 (brown with ivory knobs) and Model 2002 (ivory with tan knobs), feature distinctive crosshatched speaker grilles.

In addition to the Silvertone brand, Arvin sold some of its sets under other private labels. As yet, I have been unable to determine who retailed them.

Firestone. An Arvin Model 840T was seen recently at a Midwest swap meet bearing the Firestone brand name.

Fleetwood. About a year ago I passed up a chance to purchase a damaged Arvin Model 540T bearing the name "Fleetwood." It is believed that the Fleetwood brand name was used for marketing in Canada.

Kent. I have found two different Arvin Kents, as shown in Figure 19. The first is a 3-tube Model 402A. The second is a 4-tube Model 422A. Except for the name on the dial foil, the Kent Model 402A is identical to the Arvin version shown in Figure 2. The Kent Model 422A, however, has a black plastic carrying handle and black, rather than ivory, knobs. I always find it ironic that companies put handles on AC-only radios!

Midwest. Arvin also sold its Model 402 and Model 422 under the Midwest brand name. As far as I can tell, the only difference is the Midwest name on the modified dial foil, as shown in Figure 20.

PART IV: COLLECTING METAL ARVINS

Safety Warning: Because of the danger of electric shock, it is essential to use an isolation transformer when operating these and any other radios with floating grounds.

If you choose to restore your Arvins, you will find that all of the sets use relatively simple series-filament circuits and most are thoroughly documented in Rider's and Sam's Photofacts.

A review of Sears catalogs and Arvin magazine ads shows that the metal cabinet radios were primarily targeted as "kids" radios or "second" radios, such as would be used in the kitchen, bedroom, or dormitory. My dad and his sister received matching gray-green Silvertone 8003s for Christmas when they were in grade school.

As with most 40- to 50-year-old radios, especially those originally sold for children to use, few mint examples are found today. Parts sets are still fairly easy to find, but, unless you need knobs or other parts, don't buy sets with damaged dial foils. Although I understand that some reproduction foils are becoming available, I have yet to see one with which I am satisfied.

Since the cabinets are easy to repaint (or chrome) and the chassis and knobs are interchangeable among many of the sets, the collector needs to become familiar with each model's original appearance. All of the radios portrayed in this article are shown with original knobs, and I have tried to catalog the advertised colors in the text. The illustrations in service literature and original magazine ads can also provide clues.

Most postwar chassis have a part number stamped on the rear apron, and it should agree with the number on the paper label. If the bottom label is damaged or missing, be suspicious of repainting. While a nicely done repaint is not the end of the world, get what you pay for.

Finally, I have yet to find an ad for an Arvin with a chrome cabinet, and, given the market for which the radios were intended, I doubt that any were produced. The sets do look outstanding in chrome cabinets, however, and I see chrome as a nice alternative treatment for a cabinet which needs refinishing anyway.

For a good history of the Noblitt-Sparks (Arvin) Company, I recommend Sureck and Arnold's article "Arvin Industries and the Hopalong Cassidy Radio," in the July 1989 A.R.C.

The Kodel Microphone Speaker

BY DAVE CROCKER

It was 1925 in Cincinnati and the Kodel Radio Corporation thought it was time to offer a loudspeaker to accompany the Kodel radios that were selling fairly well. Up until that time Kodel owners had to buy some other brand of speaker to operate their Kodel receivers.

If Kodel was to introduce a new loudspeaker, it would have to be quite different – and different it was!

The radio public became tired of gooseneck and straightneck horns that failed to fit into living room decor. As a result, manufacturers began cleverly to hide their horns in ornate containers. If Kodel was to introduce a new loudspeaker, it would have to be quite different – and different it was!

In the summer of 1925, Kodel announced its unique $15 microphone loudspeaker, shown in Figures 1 and 2. It was designed to resemble the most popular broadcast microphone at that time, the Western Electric Model 1-B single button mike, shown in Figure 3. Kodel's design is similar in size to the 1-B, complete with holes and screens, but it has a taller base to accommodate the driver.

CONSTRUCTION

The Kodel microphone speaker doesn't look like a horn, but in reality it is. It is made entirely of bronze-colored metal. Inside the round framework and screens is a folded horn formed of cast iron, which shows in Figure 4. Kodel referred to this new shape as a "non-vibrating tone chamber," and called it the "snail-shell" horn. The bottom of the casting (see Figure 5) is threaded to accept a well-known driver manufactured by the Utah Radio Products Co. of Salt Lake City.

The bottom rim of the speaker base is cushioned by a cord pressed into a U-shaped ridge. This is to prevent the metal bottom from scratching the surface of the radio or table it sits on.

It is interesting to note that the Nanyo Company later sold a similar microphone speaker called the "Nanyo." While the base is more ornate, the microphone section above it is identical to that of Kodel. Whether Kodel sold Nanyo the top section when Kodel's interest switched in 1926 from radios to battery eliminators is unclear.

Kodel's advertising lauded its microphone loudspeaker as "the sensation of the season." In September 1925, the company announced two more Kodel speakers. One was a stubby horn with a grille and fabric over the front of the bell. This was called the "Deluxe" and sold for $25. The other, the "cabinet type," sold for $27.50 and was a rectangular box tone chamber with a cathedral styled grille design.

All this came about at the time when horn speaker technology had peaked. It was about to be replaced with the more modern paper cone speaker. Nonetheless, Kodel had climaxed this era with a truly unique and distinctive example of loudspeaker design.

The Cosmos Radiophone Crystal Sets 1922-1925

BY IAN L. SANDERS

Cosmos was the brand name used by the Metropolitan-Vickers Electrical Company of Manchester, England. "Metro-Vic," a heavy electrical engineering company, was a member of the "Big Six" — the original six large companies involved in the negotiations with the post office which eventually led to the formation of the British Broadcasting Company (BBC). The Cosmos name was used on receivers until 1928, when a merger between Metro-Vic and British Thomson Houston took place and production of sets was discontinued.

COSMOS RADIOPHONE TYPE C.1.

Looking for a speedy entry into the booming receiver business in 1922, Metro-Vic capitalized on its close ties with the Westinghouse Company in the United States and replicated the trusty Aeriola Junior crystal set design. This receiver, sold under the name "Cosmos Radiophone Type C.1.," is shown in Figure 1 and was ideally suited for the British market. With the exception of minor details, the set differs very little from the original U.S. version. The rugged design and high quality cabinet construction are typical of British crystal sets of the period.

The Type C.1. is enclosed in a mahogany cabinet measuring 8.5 x 7.25 x 7 inches with oxidized aluminum hinges and hasp. The cabinet carries the "Type Approved by Postmaster General" BBC decal on the front and a post office registration stamp at the rear. A compartment was provided for the storage of headphones when not in use, and later this was used to house an optional amplifier unit for loudspeaker operation. The tuning dial is of oxidized aluminum, in contrast to the plated brass dial found on the Aeriola Junior.

The tuning range is 300-600 meters by means of a variometer. Two aerial terminals (one with series condenser) were provided to accommodate either a "short" or "long" antenna. The detector is of the perikon, two-crystal type, and a spare crystal was supplied with each set. A 2000-ohm headset was also supplied, and additional headphones were offered at an increased cost for multiple listeners-in.

The advertised range was 15 to 25 miles for the local station, and the price in 1922 was four pounds, ten shillings (£4.5) complete with 100 feet of aerial wire and earthing (grounding) "materials."

A 1-valve and a 2-valve amplifier unit (known as the Type A.1. and A.2., respectively) were offered for use with the crystal set and were designed to fit in the headphone compartment. The amplifier required no adjustment and was connected to the headphone terminals of the receiver. An external 4-volt accumulator (storage battery) and a 36-volt high tension (B) battery were required.

Another version of the receiver was marketed in Britain by Western Electric and was known as the WE 44001 Crystal Set. The design closely resembles the Aeriola Junior and Cosmos Radiophone models. A companion amplifier was also offered for use with the Western Electric model.

COSMOS RADIOPHONE, TYPE C.4.

In 1925, Metro-Vic introduced a lower cost crystal set, abolishing the wooden cabinet. This was the Cosmos Radiophone, Type C.4, shown in Figure 2. The design was a radical departure from the "borrowed" C.1. style, since it is of open design and constructed on a circular, moulded ebonite body 6.5 inches in diameter. The set was introduced at about the same time as a new 3-valve receiver of similar style — the V.R.4. This overlap probably accounts for the fact that the Type C.4 crystal set bore the same number as the V.R. 4, since apparently there was never a C.2. or a C.3. model.

The detector on the C.4. was changed to the conventional glass-enclosed cat's whisker type. Like the C.1., two aerial terminals were provided to allow for the use of different length antennas. The circuit arrangement is rather unconventional in that the unused aerial terminal needed to be connected to the earth terminal (located between the aerial inputs) using a shorting link provided. Circuit diagrams for the C.1. and C.4. are shown in Figure 3.

Tuning is by a variable condenser with the large tuning control mounted in the center of the base. The tuning range is determined by the choice of coil located inside the base and attached by an unusual 4-pin arrangement. Two coils were offered: 300-750 meters covering the

BBC band and 1300-3000 meters for the long-wave band. A shorting plug at the rear of the receiver allowed one of three taps for 1/3, 2/3 or full inductance of the plug-in coil to be selected.

Although manufactured after the mandatory post office registration requirement, the tuning knob carries the moulded BBC post office approval stamp.

A novel feature of the set is the looped cord attached to the base ". . . by which to hang it up by the fireside or in any convenient place. The headphones can be hung on the tuning knob. . . Coils can be changed without taking the set down."

The price of the Cosmos Radiophone C.4. in 1925 was one pound five shillings (£1.25), and the plug-in coil was an additional four shillings, six pence (£0.225).

Letters — The SASE Problem Revisited

Dear Editor:

...I have seen a trend develop over the past few months which I feel you should be made aware of.

During the month of November 1991, I sent off twelve SASE's for listings, but have received only eight replies. During early December, it was eight SASE's with only four replies, and this latest month initiated more than twenty letters from me, but to date, only six replies.

I ask that you publish some type of comment or reminder in a future issue addressing this problem. Thank you for your consideration and for your valuable publication.

Wilbert K. Kimple, Spartanburg, SC

Dear Editor:

...There are some among us who need to be reminded that SASE's are sent for a purpose, and that is to reply to that person who sent it. In the past year, there have been four or five instances when I have sent someone an inquiry with a SASE and never received a response. ...It has happened too many times for me to think it could be blamed on the postal service.

Fellow collectors, if you want to have a good reputation in this hobby, answer your mail. ...If people are good enough to send you a SASE, please answer them. You never know — that inquiry could have come from a beginner, and if you don't answer, that person may get the idea that all of us are a bunch of jerks!

Thank you for allowing me to get this off my chest. You have a fine publication.

Ron Ramirez, Providence, KY

Dear Editor:

... Advertisers who offer a list in exchange for a SASE should send their lists. I realize that this is not a matter of earth shaking importance but it is annoying.

Michael Illfelder, Chicago, IL

AUCTION AND MEET REPORT

VRPS/AWA Convention and Auctions
October 16-18, 1992 — Irving, Texas

COMPILED BY GEORGE POTTER

The Vintage Radio and Phonograph Society (VRPS) and the Antique Wireless Association (AWA) held their 17th annual convention and auctions October 16-18, 1992, at the Holiday Inn, DFW Airport South, Irving, Texas. Over 410 attended the event.

Featured were three auctions and a silent auction. The auction proceeds totaled $39,671.75 for 900 items. Included in the total number of items were 118 passes.

Sunday morning's flea market space, which had been doubled, was well used. Needless to say, collectors were pleased with the many bargains found there.

Some interesting items in the auctions were an Atwater Kent 12 breadboard which sold at $800; a Majestic Melody Cruiser at $400, a Mozart Baby Grand horn at $200, a Sentinel Catalin at $700, and some Philco 90 cathedrals ranging from $230 to $470. All Zenith items sold well, as did cathedrals and horn speakers.

The following is a selection of items from each auction, deleting items with incomplete descriptions and boxes of gear in poor condition. No guarantee is made for the accuracy of the list.

e=excellent, vg=very good, g=good, f=fair, p=poor, unk=unknown, w/T=with tubes, NT=no tubes, N.O.S=new old stock

At Friday night's auction, 380 items were sold (58 passes) for a total of $11,838. This auction had a $10 minimum bid and included military equipment, transistor sets, Bakelites/plastics, tubes, literature, microphones, headsets, and test equipment.

An Easy Way to Trap More Dust

BY ROBERT LOZIER

A lot of collectors, I myself included, do not have the luxury of separate buildings in which to store or display our treasures. Our only choice is to place them somewhere within the household living area. That means that they must be kept relatively dust free. I find that, even with careful maintenance of filters in the furnace/airconditioner and weekly vacuuming, it is still necessary to take each item off the shelf and give it a detailed dusting about every six months.

When I am in this "dusting mode," I want to get as much dust as possible off my items in the shortest amount of time. Here is the method that works for me: First, take a cheap 20" size box fan — the kind you see selling at the discount stores for about $20 (actually, I got a used one at a fleamarket for $8) — and modify it as follows:

(1) Using duct tape, attach two 20" x 20" disposable furnace filters to the intake side of the box fan.

(2) Spray the surface of the filter pair with Pledge or Endust while the fan is running on its lowest speed.

(3) Set up a card table in the room you are going to clean and place the modified box fan on one edge so that it blows the air away from the card table. Place the items you want to clean on the card table and begin to dust with a cloth and a fine bristle paintbrush.

You will be amazed at how much dust will be trapped in the filter after a few hours work — dust that would otherwise stay in the room and partially defeat your work just completed.

Wireless-Era Receivers

Dear Editor:

While I thoroughly enjoyed A. Harrison's article "Constructing Wireless-Era Receivers from Authentic Components" [A.R.C. November 1992], I have a few suggestions to reduce costs: (1) Hardwood, such as cherry and walnut, can be mail ordered from several national suppliers for reasonable prices. (2) You might be able to get the wood work done at your local high school Industrial Arts Department if you supply the wood.

I also suggest that instead of hiding a hole with a screw, use some of the better wood-fillers. These can be bought both prestained and matched to particular hardwood species, or they can be mixed with the appropriate woodstain prior to use. Once the holes are properly filled and the breadboard is sanded and finished, the repairs will not show. (I suggest practicing with scraps of wood similar to the breadboard, first.)

Tubes Not Always Interchangeable

Dear Editor:

While trying to repair a flea market Zenith recently, I was vividly reminded that tubes are not always interchangeable, even among the same number.

After having found the IF stage oscillating, I tried all the usual solutions. Screen bypass, lead dress, etc., only changed the characteristics. I still had about -90 volts on the AVC line! While maneuvering the chassis, my hand touched the tube shell, and I got a mild shock. Did I say it was a metal 6K7?

I knew Zenith called for a 6K7G, but so what — metals have a ground pin. My old manual shows Pin 1 as being the shield. Zenith, however, did not provide a ground on Pin 1, but left it floating. I grounded the tube with a screwdriver and it stopped oscillation. I pulled switchies with a 6K7GT in a Grunow, and they both work fine now.

On A.R.C. Correspondence

Dear Editor:

I want to make a suggestion that to me would greatly improve the magazine. Why not publish the complete addresses of those who send letters so that we can correspond when appropriate?

James F. Crews, Arbovale, WV

Our policy of not publishing complete addresses is to encourage correspondence through the magazine, so that all readers can benefit from the information exchange. Please send your responses to A.R.C. If you would like to correspond directly with writers, call A.R.C. for their addresses. (Editor)

Reforming Electrolytic Capacitors

James Di Ruzza shares with us the following response to his articles on reforming electrolytic capacitors (A.R.C. February and October 1992).

Dear Mr. Di Ruzza:

...For over fifty years I have heard explanations — each different from the others — of how to reform. In fact, I did not know there was an accepted formula. Your article is now in my "quality information file."

...It is difficult to locate and expensive to buy high working voltage capacitors now that the electronic equipment is driven by low voltage. Reforming what I have in stock is a required procedure. ...Keep those articles coming. We need the information.

Joseph Lisaius, W. Caldwell, NJ

Kudos & Comments

Dear Editor:

...I'm so pleased to be able to receive A.R.C. I do appreciate the time and effort that you all expend on preparing and publishing this fine source of delight.

I have been collecting and preserving old-timers for five or six years now and was trained in vacuum tube technology in the '50s. My passion for the old-timers exploded when I received my first copy of A.R.C., and I realized what was still available to those of us who still care and wish to "keep 'em alive."

Dear Editor:

I'm thirty-five and have been collecting and repairing antique radios since my early teens. I've been an A.R.C. reader since 1985.

I really need to compliment you on your articles, which are not why I subscribed to A.R.C. seven years ago. Particularly, "The Election Model Radio" article (October 1992) was well written, very educational, with clear photos and a fascinating schematic. The thumbnail description of the author and the excerpt from Radio-Craft rounded it out beautifully.

For me, it was educational because I didn't know TRFs or sets without octal tubes were made that late. Was this one of the last of its kind, circuit-wise? Thanks to Mr. Isenring's numbering explanation, I learned that my Silvertone 4575 with chassis #101454 must also have been made in Buffalo. All in all, a very worthwhile article.

I also enjoyed the article on the Lafayette DT 320. I just wish the writer had mentioned how many tubes the set has and what types they were.

Anyway, your time and effort on the articles really shows. Good going!

Fred Kaeppel, Newburgh, IN

Dear Editor:

I would like to thank Karen McCoy of Oklahoma and Alan Douglas of Massachusetts for identifying the man on a record album cover I submitted [A.R.C., September 1992.] The information on Dr. James Harris Rogers is greatly appreciated and certainly did add merit to preserving early radio history.

I'd like to thank A.R.C. also for printing this in the Photo Review section which proves how worthy A.R.C. is to this hobby!

Gary Arnold, Marion, NC

A few short comments from subscribers:

I miss the 1st class plastic bag shipment.

Your price for A.R.C. is getting too high!

Your first class subscription rate is too much and if you raise the ad rate, I won't advertise either.

I am very disappointed in A.R.C. and have decided not to renew my subscription.

Dear Editor:

The issues keep getting better and better! Don't let the economy cause a cutback! ...Too bad you can't get the price of the publication to hold. ...Seriously, take a look at ways to reduce the costs.

The auction reports and comments are great as I've wondered about some of the high (and low) prices.

You are doing a fine job for the hobby and helping to maintain and protect the history of radio.

Stan Lopes, Concord, CA

Dear Editor:

...Mixing of "For Sale" with "Wanted" drives me — and I'm sure others as well — nuts...

Dick Kowalski, Warren, MI

Dear Editor,

How difficult would it be to print the city and state for each classified in bold face?

Fredric Simowitz, St. Charles, MO

Dear Editor,

...sure wish you would separate "For Sale" from "Wanted" and put new ads first.

William Hawkins, Bloomington, MN

Dear Editor,

You really ought to "classify" in a "classified" publication. We classify our reader ads in our weekly newspaper and we have only about two dozen a week. Anyway... I don't read the ads any more — don't have time to sort through what I don't want. I'm only renewing for the good articles you run.

Harry Church, Lebanon, IL

In reply...

Unfortunately, "classifying" over 700 ads by "For Sale," "Wanted," etc., or by type of radio, geography, etc. would increase both costs and production time. A.R.C. would be delivered later in the month and cost more. Since mixing the ads also encourages all ads to be read, no changes in policy are planned. However, the ad heading — For Sale, Wanted, etc. — is boldfaced so that scanning for one type of ad is easier.

We continually strive to balance the quality of A.R.C. with the cost to produce it. We believe that the chart below and the overwhelmingly positive response from our readers show that we have succeeded. (Editor)

Repairing RCA Catacombs

BY FRANK BOCK

Having a special interest in early superheterodynes, I quickly became familiar with the RCA receivers that used catacombs — Models AR810, AR812, and Radiolas 24, 25, 26, and 28. The catacomb is an electronic module that incorporates most of the receiver's circuitry. There are three different types of catacombs: (1) the AR-810, the AR812, and the Radiola 24 and 26, all of which use six UV199 tubes; (2) the Radiola 25 which uses five UX199s and one UX120; and (3) the Radiola 28 which uses seven UX199s and one UX120. The number of tube sockets, components and wire leads varies with each catacomb type, but the restoration procedures described apply to all three types. For the purposes of this article, the 6-tube catacomb is used as a reference.

Inside the catacombs are audio transformers, capacitors, a grid leak resistor, and various IF/RF transformers that use laminated iron cores. These components are mounted to a Bakelite chassis which also serves as the tube sockets. The chassis assembly is potted with wax into a nickel-plated tin container covered by a steel plate cover that has openings for the tubes. Two screws and two small lead seals secure the steel plate to the tin container. Breaking the seals would expose unauthorized tampering.

IDENTIFYING THE PROBLEM

The problem in a nonfunctional catacomb can usually be found by resistance checks between the 24 tube socket fingers and the 13 leads called "whiskers." All but two RF, IF and audio coils can be checked externally. Schematics are available in the reprint of Gernsback's Official Radio Service Manual.

There are two typical problems with catacombs: the first is with open audio transformers, and the second usually occurs with sets that have experienced harsh environments over the years. Temperatures in attics or garages can vary from extreme cold at night to warm or hot during the day. This temperature cycling causes the wax potting to crack, thereby allowing separating or sliding in motion. The fine IF/RF coil wires in the vicinity of or passing through these cracks will eventually break or separate from their terminals.

A third problem is cited as follows in Gernsback's Official Radio Service Manual, page 249: "Occasionally an oscillating catacomb will be found, and the only remedy is to change the catacomb; for no manner of adjusting will stop the oscillations, which cause whistles to be heard on all station settings." Although this problem is supposed to be unfixable, it is also unlikely, and I have never experienced it.

REPAIR STEPS

Repair of the catacomb begins by unsoldering the 13 leads from the terminal strip and removing the 2 screws attaching the catacomb to the frame of the radio. The lead seals can be removed (and saved) by filing off the excess lead protruding from the bottom and pushing them out with a ⅛-inch punch. Remove and reverse (lip facing up) the steel plate; 6 screws secure the plate to the Bakelite chassis. To remove the catacomb from the tin container, the outer wax surface must be melted. Unlike the black tar potting used in Atwater Kent sets, the catacomb wax melts at a low temperature — 250° F.

For my first catacomb repair, I melted the wax on the kitchen stove. This was a difficult and smoky mess, so I used an electric heat gun to repair all subsequent catacombs. Electric heat guns are used for various applications, including paint stripping and heating shrink tubing. Ironically, the higher power units produce lower exhaust temperatures

(at higher air flow) than the cheaper low power units and would be a better choice for repairing catacombs.

An excellent heat gun is the Milwaukee Model 750 which produces 1680 watts of heat at an adjustable temperature between 500° and 750° F. With this unit kept at one spot at 500°, a catacomb can be removed from the container and melted down in approximately one hour. A lower-power, higher-temperature heat gun will take longer and could possibly overheat the potting.

To remove the catacomb from the tin container, you must place it upside down and heat it with the heat gun for about 10 to 15 minutes; see Figure 1. The entire container surface should be heated uniformly with the heat gun continuously moving about 1 inch per second and with the nozzle approximately 4 inches from the surface. When the container is hot enough, put on gloves and pull the Bakelite chassis from the tin container, alternating the sides being pulled. It may be necessary to wedge a small screwdriver down the side of the container to prevent a suction effect. If the chassis refuses to separate, continue heating the container.

When the chassis has been separated, it should be suspended approximately 3 inches above a wide-diameter wax recovery container like a cookie can, as shown in Figure 2. The steel plate can be tied to a 2-foot long rod that is supported between two 10-inch high boxes. Begin melting the wax by aiming the heat gun nozzle approximately 4 to 8 inches away from the vertical center of the wax. If the wax is melting too slowly or not at all, the heat gun should be moved closer, but with caution! High temperature heat guns may cause the wax to smoke or burn if too close to the potting, so it may be necessary to back off.

Where there is a break in one of the RF/IF transformer wires, remove enough wax to expose these wires. If an audio transformer is to be removed, melt all the wax around that transformer. If there are cracks in the potting, avoid the temptation of physically pushing off large chunks since you risk breaking more of the fine IF/RF wires.

It may be wise to melt down cracked areas to prevent their causing future damage, although it is unnecessary to melt all the wax and expose the bare coils. When the appropriate amount of wax has been melted off, the rod is removed, the steel plate reversed (lip facing down), and the catacomb placed upside down on the workbench.

If an audio transformer is open, there are four choices. (1) Replace with a good RCA audio. (2) Replace with an A53-C (with its bracket removed). (3) Replace the bad coil assembly with a PT-431 coil assembly (both the A53-C and PT-431 are available from Antique Electronic Supply). (4) Repair the bad coil assembly. The fourth option is the most time-consuming.

To find a broken IF/RF lead wire, trace the circuit to the post to which this wire should be connected. The broken wire should be carefully stripped and soldered back to the post. If the 13 catacomb whiskers' leads are in poor condition, they can be replaced with black cloth-covered wire, also available from Antique Electronic Supply (Part No. SW-704).

When all repairs are made, a thorough resistance check should be made before reassembling the catacomb and mounting it into the receiver. If it is to be potted with the recovered wax, the

Although unnecessary, repotting the catacomb can be achieved by first heating the wax in the cookie can with the heat gun. When the wax is a thin liquid, it should be poured into the catacomb tin container where heating should continue a few more minutes. The wax should be stirred frequently.

The repaired catacomb assembly is then slowly lowered into the tin container (be sure the container and assembly mounting holes are aligned) where it is cooled with no movement or vibration for a few hours. Finally the lead seals can be glued into their original holes and the catacomb mounted back into the receiver.

I have successfully repaired 9 catacombs and have cannibalized 3 others for audio transformers. If you would like to attempt to repair a catacomb and have any questions, feel free to write me.

Ten Commandments for the Radio Serviceman

CONTRIBUTED BY LLOYD SPIVEY

The source of these radio-related "commandments" is unknown, according to Lloyd Spivey, who found them in his archives. A few of them, although written for servicemen of another era, might serve as New Year's resolutions for those of us who buy and sell old radios today. (Editor)

1. Thou shalt listen with patience and fortitude to the cries of anguish of thy customers, for to ignore them is to invite oblivion.

2. Thou shalt carry on thy person all necessary parts to make well a sick product, for heaven help thee if thou must go back to the shop for an 8250-066-BN-03.

3. Thou shalt not imply by word or deed that the serviceman who came before thee knew naught, for who knows if that serviceman was not thee thyself?

4. Thou shalt be humble and contrite when thou enterest into the householder's kingdom.

5. Thou shalt be in communion twice daily with thy dispatcher, and he shall convey to thee the sufferings of the multitude and, yea, direct thee to the needy.

6. Thou shalt suffer the little children, though they snitch thy tools. Thou shalt speak to them with a soft tongue, and ply them with sweets, and speak no harsh words to them, for in the eyes of their mothers they can do no evil.

7. Thou shalt be a moneychanger, but never a moneylender. Thou shalt avoid like the seven plagues the extending of credit, for the five uncollected oft loses both itself and the five thou spends to collect it.

8. Thou shalt identify the parts thou hast disgorged from the product for warranty return, for the office staff is, verily, unimaginative and cannot identify a shapeless piece of metal.

9. Thou shalt never speak harshly of a product thou art servicing, for to do so is to cast a shadow upon the judgment of thy customer.

10. When thy hands are feeble and can no longer lift a toolbox, thou wilt pass on to the big shop in the sky where thy dispatcher will interrogate thee, saying, "Hast thou well and faithfully discharged the duties of an earthly serviceman?"

And thou shalt reply, "Yea, verily, here is my summary sheet."

And the dispatcher shall speak softly to the General Manager, saying, "Behold, this man hath already served his time in Purgatory. Let him pass on through!"

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 17¢ each. See details below. Classified ads must be received (not just postmarked!) by Noon Eastern Time on the ad deadline. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on page 2 for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Please write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, especially when included with other A.R.C. correspondence. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

Please write legibly and use both capital and small letters. Do not use dashes between words. Some numbers and letters can look alike, for example 1, l and I (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Write the following characters clearly (especially in model numbers): 1, l and I; 0, O , o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which looks similar to a common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's comments are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisified, and to comply with a buyer refund request on unaltered returned items.

Publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason. Since club activities receive free advertising on the Coming Radio Events page, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.

This standard ad format makes scanning the ads easier.

Before writing your ad, please look over the ads in a recent issue of A.R.C., and try to write your ad in the same style. Full name and address is required in all classified ads; we will add it if you forget.

Deadline: 1st of the month for all ads with drawings or photos!

Drawings and photos are encouraged as the response to your ad is much larger and the reader knows better what you want or are selling. Send in your drawing or photograph, and A.R.C. will reduce it or enlarge it as needed.

$10.00 per month for each photo or drawing (If ad is canceled, this amount cannot always be refunded.)

CHANGES & CANCELLATIONS

Please check your ads carefully before sending them in. Once ads are received, it is not always possible to refund the amount sent, pull the ad or make changes.

IMPORTANT — COUNTING WORDS — IMPORTANT

The standard headings: WANTED, FOR SALE, etc., count as one word each time used in an ad. Name, address and (one) telephone number, count as 6 words, regardless of length. Ham call letters and business name can be included in the 6 words and do not count extra. Full name (or company name) and address is required in all classified ads. Each additional word, abbreviation, model number or number group, extra telephone numbers, etc. count as one word each. Hyphenated words count as two words.
